

Danielle Madden-Buck, a teacher in the Social Studies Department at St. Edmund Preparatory High School, was honored by WABC-TV on June 6 for creating Project Hush Little Baby.

The project is a club aimed at creating awareness of premature births and providing support for the preemies in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit of Morgan Stanley Children's Hospital. The group held events and raised money from raffles and donated goods to support the projects.

Madden-Buck is one of only four award recipients of the Above and Beyond Award from WABC, which was created to honor teachers, students and administrators who are making a big difference in school or in their communities. A news segment will air on June 18 at 7 p.m. on ABC Channel 7.

Club members with Danielle Madden-Buck (left) holding her daughter Aleigha.